Foreword

Contents

Correctional Populations in the United States, 1985 represents a consolidation of data gathered in various statistical programs currently maintained by the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS). The goal was to compile in one volume the major components of corrections so that these statistics can be used easily.

This volume, in replacing four separate publications, emphasizes the connections between the parts of that large and growing population under correctional supervision. Its format is designed to promote understanding of the population as a whole and of its management. Correctional Populations in the United States, 1985 thereby revives some of the aims expressed for the early reporting programs.

Deepest gratitude is extended to the State, Federal, and local respondents who have enabled us to continue this joint venture, which stretches back to 1850. I hope that this and future BJS reports will continue to help us all gain more insight into the important role of corrections agencies and employees throughout the Nation.

Director

Making comparisons

Correctional Populations in the United States, 1985 is designed for the comparison of detailed information. Care must be exercised that departures from reporting criteria are taken into account when making comparisons. BJS follows data collection rules and reporting protocols that are the most widely used among the States, that are consistent with historical statistics, and that impose the least burden on respondents. However, some jurisdictions may depart from these conventions and are asked to document such differences.

Many tables have been shortened from what appeared in previous reports. Readers should be aware that footnotes, table notes, and explanatory notes are essential for a full understanding of the data.

The following symbols are used in the tables:

- / not reported
- : not known
- ... not applicable
- * reported in another category

History of U.S. correctional statistics

In 1850 the Federal Government, in cooperation with the States as a part of the Seventh Decennial Census, initiated a count of prisoners in 32 States and in the territories of Minnesota, New Mexico, Oregon, and Utah. Between 1850 and 1870, U.S. marshals administered the census of prisoners as part of a special schedule of social statistics. The 1860 report indicated there were 61 prisoners in State institutions per 100,000 residents. By 1890 Nevada had the highest per capita rate among the States, 203, and Wyoming, the lowest at 16. In that same year New York had 136 prisoners per 100,000 residents, and California had 169.

In 1910 the introduction of the indeterminate sentence was described in prisoner statistics; 21% of State prisoners on January 1 had received such sentences. The 1923 report said that more than one-half the prison admissions that year were under indeterminate sentences and observed that such sentences resulted in wide ranges between minimum and maximum sentences and disparities in setting release dates. In 1926 the Bureau of the Census began the annual collection of prisoner statistics, and the report for that year described the goal of the effort as the collection of data to "show the application of penal policies for various classes of offenders and in different parts of the country." That first annual report in 1926, provided information by jurisdiction on admissions, releases, sentences and time served, inmates under sentence of death, recidivism, and crowding--issues of major concern today.

During the past 60 years the partnership between the Federal Government and the States and localities in collecting corrections data has grown and prospered.

In 1950 the program was transferred from the Bureau of the Census to the Bureau of Prisons in the Department of Justice and in 1971 to the predecessor agency of the Bureau of Justice Statistics, the National Criminal Justice Information and Statistics Service of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA). LEAA added the statistical series on local jails (1970), probation (1979), and parole (1976).

All of the major reporting series and projects of the corrections unit, Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) are outlined under "Data sources" below. The Bureau of the Census serves as the data collection agency for these series. When Congress created the Bureau of the Census in the late 19th century, it charged the agency with the responsibility to account for prisoners. That involvement has continued intermittently and in various forms until the present, as shown in the following chronology that sketches the evolution of the statistical reports grouped in this volume:

1904. Prisoners and Juvenile Delinquents, 1904 reported movements rather than individuals. Prison officials served as enumerators.

1923. Prisoners, 1923 presented adults separate from juveniles.

1926. Prisoners in State and Federal Prisons and Reformatories began as an annual report that continued until 1946. The report included a special section on prisoners under sentence of death. From 1946 to 1970 the Federal Bureau of Prisons (BOP) published the annual figures. The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) followed for 9 years until BJS was created in 1980. (The Bureau of the Census has acted as collecting agent since 1972.)

1947. The Bureau of Prisons began the separate annual reports on prisoners under sentence of death. The LEAA and then BJS continued the reports until 1984. The Bureau of Justice Statistics will continue to publish annual bulletins about the death penalty and persons sentenced to death; the more detailed statistics will appear in the corrections volume.

1965. The National Council on Crime and Delinquency (NCCD), a non governmental organization, started the Uniform Parole Reports project under Federal contract.

1970. LEAA conducted its first 1-day count of jails.

1974. LEAA, with the Bureau of the Census, surveyed a national random sample of offenders in State prisons. The survey, repeated in 1979 and 1986, collected information about personal background and criminal history and inquired about drug and alcohol usage.

1976. The NCCD and LEAA annual reports covered parole data beginning in 1976.

1978. The Bureau of the Census counted prisoners in U.S. jails; the Bureau repeated the complete enumeration in 1983.

1979. The first annual report on parole and probation appeared, published by BJS. This Department of Justice agency will continue issuing summary reports, reserving detailed data for the corrections statistics volume.

1982. The Bureau of the Census completed the first annual jail sample survey for BJS. Bulletins containing data from the sample survey will be supplemented by the corrections volume.

Definitions of common terms used in the tables

Custody. To have custody of a prisoner, a State must hold that person in one of its facilities. Early statistical reports gave custody counts that largely have been replaced by jurisdiction counts of State prison populations. A State may have custody of a prisoner over whom another State maintains jurisdiction. For example, State A's prison burns, and State Z houses the A inmates temporarily. State Z has custody; State A, jurisdiction. The tables present both kinds of counting procedures, with jurisdiction counts being more complete; States that report only on custody are noted.

Detention status. This term distinguishes between prisoners, usually in jail, who were convicted or who were awaiting judgment.

Discretionary parole. A release from prison to supervision is discretionary when it is decided by a board or other authority.

Good-time. When correctional authorities deduct time from a prison or jail sentence, often to reward or to encourage good behavior, they give good-time. When the good-time is tied to a specific action, such as working in prison industry or performing a meritorious deed, it is called "earned."

Hispanic origin. A person of Hispanic origin may be of any race; however, a few States treat the ethnic category as a racial one. Reporting officials usually rely on self-definition, but some States classify according to surname.

Jurisdiction. Jurisdiction refers to a unit of government or to the legal authority to exercise governmental power. According to the latter meaning, the prisoners under a State's jurisdiction may be in the custody of local jails. (See "custody.")

Mandatory parole. Mandatory parole results from statutory and correctional guidelines, and no judgment by a panel or board is required for release of a prisoner to supervision outside of prison.

Maximum sentence length. Some jurisdictions sentence offenders to a range of years; the larger number in that range is the most that a prisoner may serve on a sentence. Often good-time is subtracted from the maximum sentence. When the tables report on prisoners with sentences longer or shorter than a year, the maximum sentence is used where applicable.

Movement. In corrections, a movement is an admission to or a release from a status--prisoner, parolee, or probationer. A transfer between facilities does not, unless specifically noted, count as a movement.

One-day count. For a 1-day count a jurisdiction or facility is asked to report how many people were on its roll on a certain day. The average daily population is a year's total number of people on the roll each day, divided by the number of days. The methods of counting in aggregate do not yield estimates of either the number of persons in a status during a year or the average amount of time persons remain in a status.

Race. Classification by race often depends on the reporting program and the State. A few States reported two categories: white and nonwhite. A few others categorized Hispanic offenders as belonging to "other race." Numbers of persons with certain racial backgrounds were sometimes estimated.

Reporting time. The prison, probation, parole, and capital punishment figures are from December 31, 1985, unless otherwise noted. The Bureau of the Census surveyed jails on June 30, 1985; they last took a complete census of jails on June 30, 1983.

Revisions. Many States revise the yearend number reported for the previous year. Those revisions are made in the total, not the detail. For example, the numbers of blacks, whites, and members of other races for 1984 were not changed by a State in 1985 to equal its revised 1984 total.

Youthful offender status. State legislatures create the youthful offender status through statutes that provide for special sentencing, commitment, or record sealing procedures for young adult offenders adjudicated in a criminal court, as opposed to a juvenile court. The offenders may be above the statutory age limit for juveniles but below a specified upper age limit.

Special studies of recidivism

BJS has conducted two major studies of the arrests and convictions of offenders after they are released from prison.

Recidivism I. This project analyzed arrests and convictions of a cohort of offenders paroled from prison in 20 States. It has incorporated into the parole records FBI data on each parolee's contacts with criminal justice agencies. The selected offenders were 18 to 22 years of age when they were released from prison in 1978.

Recidivism II. This data collection program will permit the analysis of criminal justice contacts for a sample of 15,000 prisoners released from prisons in 10 States in 1983. The effort merges FBI, State, and local police records with correctional records.

Notes to tables 1.1 and 1.2

The numbers in this volume come from officials of the Nation's prisons, jails, and probation and parole agencies. They counted about 2.9 million Americans under their supervision on a day in 1985 (table 1.1). Probation agencies accounted for the largest part of that population, about 1.9 million offenders. Prisons held more than half a million persons, and an additional 275,000 were on parole from prison. The remainder, approximately 250,000, were in jail.

Reported figures from 1985, augmented with the complete jail census last taken in 1983, show that the persons in the care, custody, or control of correctional authorities made up about 1.6% of all adults. Most of them were men (table 1.2). About two-thirds of them were white; one-third, black or of another race.

Were it possible to count everyone under correctional supervision at any time during 1985, rather than only on 1 day, the percent of the adult population would be several times 1.6%. The large number of brief stays in jail would be the main source of differences between results from the two methods of counting. With a quarter million prisoners on a single day, jails had more than 8 million admissions and 8 million releases in the course of 12 months. How many different persons those 16 million movements represented is not known, but the size of the number leads to the conclusion that the percentage of adults, especially men, involved in corrections during 1985 was substantially more than 1.6%.

*Juveniles are persons of an age specified by State statute (usually under 18) as initially subject to juvenile court authority even if they are tried as adults in criminal court.

Because juveniles made up less than 1% of the jail population, caution must be used in interpreting any changes in their number.

Explanatory notes

The 1985 survey of jails was the third annual survey sponsored by the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) and conducted by the U.S. Bureau of the Census. This series follows a similar effort made by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) during the 1970's.

The sample surveys yield estimates of the national jail population for those years that lack a complete enumeration. Full censuses were done on February 1, 1978, and June 30, 1983.

The 1985 survey, conducted on June 30, included 1,142 jails in 893 jurisdictions--counties, municipalities, or townships that administer 1 or more jails. A jurisdiction with an average daily inmate population of 100 or more in the 1983 census automatically entered the survey. Such units of government, referred to as certainty jurisdictions, accounted for 614 jails and 189,329 inmates, or 74% of the total estimated inmate population.

Administrators of jails in jurisdictions with large jail populations reported the number of inmates held because of crowded facilities elsewhere, jail capacity, and reasons for court orders, if any. (See the questionnaire CJ-5.) The other jurisdictions in the survey belonged to a stratified random sample of jurisdictions with an average daily inmate population of less than 100.

The survey excluded five types of facilities from the count:

- lock-ups that house persons for less than 48 hours;
- Federal facilities;
- State facilities;
- privately operated facilities;
- the combined jail-prison systems of Connecticut, Delaware, Hawaii, Rhode Island, and Vermont.

Data were obtained through mailed questionnaires. Two follow-up mailings and phone calls elicited a response from every sampled jail not in a certainty jurisdiction (a jurisdiction with such a large population that it has 100% certainty of entering the sample). Ninety-five percent of the facilities in jurisdictions with large populations responded.

DEFINITIONS

Local jail — a confinement facility usually administered by a local law enforcement agency, intended for adults but sometimes also containing juveniles, which holds persons detained pending adjudication and/or persons committed after adjudication for sentences usually a year or less. Temporary holding facilities, or lockups, that do not hold persons after being formally charged in court (usually within 48 hours of arrest) are excluded.

Juvenile — a person subject to the exercise of juvenile court jurisdiction for purposes of adjudication and treatment based on age and offense limitations as defined by State law. For the purposes of this report, a person of juvenile age is considered a juvenile even though tried as an adult in criminal court.

Adult criminal offender — a person subject to the original jurisdiction of the criminal court rather than the juvenile court because at the time of the offense the person was above a statutory age limit.

Youthful offender — a person adjudicated in criminal court, who may be above the statutory age limit for juveniles but below a specified upper age limit and for whom special correctional commitments and special record-sealing procedures are made available by statute. For the purposes of this report youthful offenders should be considered adults.

Note: Five States reported adults on probation for violations of regulations or statutes not classified as felonies or misdemeanors. In Illinois 11,034 persons received probated sentences for driving while intoxicated. States reporting adults on probation in similar categories included Kansas, 1,639; New Jersey, 13; Washington, 13; and Ohio, 7.

/ Jurisdiction did not report category.

<sup>a</sup> Illinois reported under "other" type of offense 11,034 persons given probated sentences for driving while intoxicated.

Explanatory notes by jurisdiction

Alabama

Alabama derived the number of persons leaving probation from the number of persons entering and the number present at the end of the year.

Alabama estimated all detail except status of supervision.

Alaska

Alaska could not give the number of absconders and included them under "active supervision."

Arkansas

Arkansas revised its previously reported estimate of December 31, 1984, to include local offices. Arkansas estimated all data.

California

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of a caseload audit.

Connecticut

The probation staff before 1985 supervised pre-trial alcohol cases. During the year the State transferred 12,990 such cases to the Pre-Trial Bail Commission and classified them as "other" persons leaving probation.

Florida

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because the survey added local agencies to the count. (See table at end of notes.)

Georgia

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population; Georgia changed from counting cases to counting people and corrected a double counting in De Kalb and Fulton counties.

Illinois

Illinois estimated the number of persons leaving probation.

Indiana

Indiana reported 1984 data for 1985.

Iowa

For persons entering probation, 3,198 were classified as "other," which were reinstatements and transfers. Officials could not separate the two. For persons transferred from probation, 2,954 were classified as "other type of exit."

Kansas

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by Kansas.

Kentucky

In 1985 Kentucky ceased to report data on inactive probation cases, estimated to have been 8,330.

Louisiana

Louisiana estimated counts for sex, race, and offense type.

Maryland

Maryland estimated the number of persons on probation by reducing its count of probation cases 10%.

Michigan

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because local agencies were added to the survey. (See table at end of notes.) Many of the persons reporting to local probation agencies were sentenced for drunk driving.

Missouri

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of computer problems.

Missouri estimated all felony figures.

Montana

Montana reported 1984 data for 1985 because it was installing a new computer system at the time of reporting.

Nevada

Nevada estimated all data.

New Hampshire

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because local agencies were added to the survey. (See table at end of notes.)

New Jersey

The January 1, 1985, probation count differs from the December 31, 1984, count because New Jersey inventoried the probation population.

New Mexico

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

New Mexico estimated counts for sex, race, and Hispanic origin.

New York

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

Ohio

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because Ohio substituted a complete enumeration of local offices for estimates.

Oklahoma

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

Oklahoma estimated the number of persons entering probation to balance the yearend population.

Oregon

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

Pennsylvania

Pennsylvania estimated the number of persons entering and leaving probation. The large increase in counts from 1984 to 1985, according to Pennsylvania officials, resulted from a computer's replacing manual reporting and from more DWI cases.

South Carolina

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

South Dakota

South Dakota did not report the number of persons entering or leaving probation, and officials did not want to estimate. South Dakota authorities attributed the increased number on probation to an increase in DWI cases.

Utah

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

To account for the decline in the number of persons on probation, Utah officials cited a law that restricts the length of probation and the fact that probation was no longer being used for less serious offenses.

Vermont

Vermont estimated all data.

Virginia

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

Virginia reported for its fiscal year, July 1, 1984, to June 30, 1985.

Virginia estimated counts for sex and race.

Washington

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because Washington substituted a complete count of local offices for estimates.

West Virginia

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

Wisconsin

The January 1, 1985, probation population differs from the December 31, 1984, population because of corrections made by the State.

FROM THE DIRECTOR
BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

On behalf of the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), Department of Justice, the Bureau of the Census is conducting the National Probation Data Survey. The survey will obtain current information on the probation population in calendar year 1985 and the population movement.

State, local, and Federal officials will use the data to assess the changing needs of probation systems and monitor their status. The BJS will publish the data in a bulletin entitled Probation and Parole 1985 scheduled for release in fall 1986.

So that we can finish data collection and publish the survey results as soon as possible, please complete this questionnaire within the next 3 weeks and return it in the enclosed envelope. If we can help in completing the questionnaire, please call Arthur Ciampa at (301) 763—7825.

The Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Street Act of 1968, as amended (42 U.S.C. 3732), authorizes this report. Although you are not required legally to respond, we need your participation to make the results of this survey comprehensive, accurate, and timely.

Thank you for your cooperation in the survey.

Sincerely,

JOHN G. KEANE

INSTRUCTIONS

Please complete each of the items on the questionnaire. When an exact amount is not available, please estimate the figure and mark with an asterisk. Do not leave blanks or mark dashes. Mark a "0" if your State can have probationers in the particular category, but has none at this time. Mark "NA" (not applicable) if the item does not apply in your State. Mark "DK" (don't know) if the item applies to probationers in your State, but you are unable to provide the number and/or have included it in another category. Describe difficulties encountered and items which cannot be estimated in the Remarks section.

THE PROBATION POPULATION

Probationers are those who have been placed under the supervision of a probation agency as part of a court order — regardless of whether they have been convicted.

Please include only adult probationers.

Include both active and inactive supervisory cases.

Exclude persons on "bench probation," "court probation," or "summary probation," who have not been placed under the supervision of a probation agency.

For interstate compacts, include those probationers who are sent to another State for supervision, but exclude those whom your State supervises for another State.

Item 1 — PROBATION POPULATION (JANUARY 1, 1985)

Provide the population at the beginning of the year in item 1. Please describe in the Remarks section any differences between this figure and the one which was reported last year. (Last year's figure has been entered on the worksheet.)

Items 2 and 3 — POPULATION MOVEMENT IN 1985

Please enter the number of cases that entered and exited the probation system during 1985. Individuals should be counted separately each time they entered or exited.

2. Entries — Include those who have entered the probation system. (Exclude those sentenced to serve probation, whose terms have not actually begun.)

a. Probation without Incarceration — Include those sentenced to probation with no jail or prison term.

b. Probation with prison or jail sentence — Enter those on probation whose sentence included incarceration. (That is, they entered probation from a correctional facility.)

3. Exits

a. Completion of probation — Include all probationers who completed their term and were discharged during 1984. (Consider early term discharges to be the completion of a shortened term.)

b. Discharged absconders — Include absconders who were discharged from probation while on absconder status. (Report absconders who were incarcerated under e.)

c. Discharged to custody, detainer, or warrant

d. Incarcerated with new sentence — Include all probationers removed from probation supervision because of incarceration on a new offense.

e. Incarcerated under current sentence — Include all probationers whose probation was revoked.

Item 4 — PROBATION POPULATION (DECEMBER 31, 1985)

Please provide the year end population. (This figure should equal the population in item 1 plus the number of entries in item 2 minus the number of exits in item 3.)

Items 5 through 7 — SEX, RACE, ETHNICITY

These items are self explanatory.

Item 8 — OFFENSE TYPE (DECEMBER 31, 1985)

a. Felony — Include all probationers who were felony cases, regardless of whether convicted or unconvicted.

b. Misdemeanor — Include all probationers who were misdemeanor cases, regardless of whether convicted or unconvicted.

Item 9 — PROBATION STATUS (DECEMBER 31, 1985)

a. Suspended execution of sentence — Include all probationers whose sentence of confinement was imposed and then suspended.

b. Suspended imposition of sentence — Include all probationers whose sentence of confinement was not imposed (e.g., case continued without finding, deferred sentence, and probation before verdict).

c. Direct sentence to probation — Include all probationers whose probation was imposed and executed as the final sentence.

Item 10 — SUPERVISION STATUS (DECEMBER 31, 1985)

a. Active — Include all probationers who were reporting on some regular basis. (Do not include probationers who were under supervision out of State.)

b. Inactive — Include all probationers who were excused from regular reporting. (Do not include probationers who were under supervision out of State.)

c. Absconder — Include all probationers who were on absconder status. (Do not include probationers who were under supervision out of State.)

d. Supervised out of State — Include all probationers who were under your jurisdiction but are supervised out of State.

Items 11 through 13 — COVERAGE AND AVAILABILITY OF DATA

Please answer these items relating to your ability to report data on all adult probationers.

Table 4.2. Youthful offender status in 28 jurisdictions, January 1, 1985

Alabama Judges may grant youthful offender status to persons under 21 years of age, based on the offenders' records and the gravity of their offenses. The maximum length of incarceration is 3 years; the maximum fine, $1,000. Court records are not public, and the trials have no jury.	Hawaii First offenders between 16 and 21 years old may qualify for special terms of commitment: Class A, 8 years; Class B, 5 years; and Class C, 4 years.	misdemeanants, offenders must be under 25, and if Class H or A felons, offenders must be under 21. They may be sentenced to a 20-year maximum term with no minimum. They are immediately eligible for parole with good-time or gain-time deducted from the maximum.
Arkansas The Alternative Service Act of 1975 permits courts to sentence to supervision outside of prison those first offenders under 26 who have not committed capital crimes, rape, robbery, or murder. An offender may receive a suspended or probated sentence, a term not longer than 3 years in an alternative service program, or a sentence to the Department of Corrections with the stipulation of immediate parole or pardon. When the sentence or probation is completed, the record of the offense may be expunged. The 1971 Youthful Offender Act provides that first-time male offenders under 21 may be confined in a separate facility.	Idaho The Youth Rehabilitation Act provides that juvenile court waives jurisdiction for the following offenses: murder, robbery, rape, forcible sexual penetration with a foreign object, infamous crimes against nature, mayhem, or assault and battery committed while attempting a crime just listed.	North Dakota Felonious offenders between the ages of 16 and 18 are treated as adults except that they are sentenced to the State Industrial School for Juveniles. If they pose behavior problems at the school, they may face a hearing and be transferred to the State penitentiary.
California The California Youth Authority has jurisdiction over all offenders under 25. After successful completion of parole an offender may petition the court to set aside the conviction. Adjudication of youthful offenders occurs in juvenile court under a separate children's code. Minors may be committed for less than 3 years to the Department of Institutions. In some circumstances minors may be prosecuted as adults and receive sentences to the Department of Corrections.	Maine Courts may give indeterminate sentences to offenders under 18; in some specific cases, usually severe, offenders younger than 21 receive indeterminate sentences.	Ohio First offenders under age 30 may be committed as reformatory inmates who receive about 10% more good-time than prison inmates.
Colorado First offenders who are 16 or 17 years old may use the youthful offender plea.	Massachusetts In certain circumstances an offender under age 27 may receive a reformatory or indeterminate sentence.	Oklahoma Nonviolent offenders under 22 may be sentenced to the Department of Corrections or to community corrections. If they are not arrested for other offenses during the parole period, they can petition to have their criminal record dismissed.
Connecticut The sentence can be a fine of less than $1,000, imprisonment, conditional or unconditional discharge, community service, or a suspended sentence. With no more felony convictions before the offender reaches 21, the sealed records of the offense are erased.	Michigan The Holmes Youthful Trainee Act of 1967 provides that courts may assign offenders 17 to 21 years old to a minimum security facility of the Department of Corrections or to probation less than 4 years. Persons who have committed murder or major controlled substance offenses are not eligible. The youthful trainee status is not a conviction.	Pennsylvania The Camp Hill or Youthful Offenders Act provides that offenders who are 16 or 17 and certified as adults, or who are under 25 may be given maximum sentences without minimums. The sentences may be 6 years or the maximum prescribed for an offense, whichever is less. The inmates are eligible for parole at any time. The act was used to sentence about 100 offenders a year. Legislative repeal of the act was in progress in January 1985.
District of Columbia The Federal Youthful Corrections Act was repealed. The D.C. Youth Corrections Act had not taken effect at the time of the survey.	Nebraska For those offenders under age 16 juvenile court has exclusive jurisdiction over misdemeanants and concurrent jurisdiction with district court over felons. For all offenders 16 and 17 years old both types of court have concurrent jurisdiction. Concurrent jurisdiction requires that county attorneys decide in which court to file. Juvenile courts seal their records and provide a variety of alternatives to incarceration. Two State correction centers, one for each sex, imprison juvenile offenders.	South Carolina Offenders under 21 may be sentenced one time to special youthful offender treatment for not more than 6 years. With their consent offenders between 21 and 25 years old can also be sentenced as special youthful offenders.
Florida First-time defendants, 18 to 20 years old at the time of the offense, may be tried as youthful offenders for felonies that have maximum sentences less than life in prison. An offender may receive a probated or suspended sentence, incarceration for no more than 6 years, or placement in a community control program for no more than 2 years. Certain nonviolent first offenders under 25 and with maximum sentences under 10 years may be treated as youthful offenders. First offenders under 19 and with sentences more than 10 years but less than life may also be considered youthful offenders if they face mental or physical harm in an adult facility.	New Hampshire Delinquent minors, 17 to 18 years old, may be sent to the House of Correction or jail for no longer time than adult offenders would receive for like offenses. Two limitations must be observed: the offenders cannot be incarcerated past their 19th birthday and they must be separated from adults.	South Dakota Offenders younger than 21 may be committed to the State Training School or a youth forestry camp.
Georgia Offenders who are between 17 and 25 years old may be given youthful offender status which accords separate prison facilities and more program opportunities. Youthful offender records are not sealed unless the defendant is a first offender.	New Jersey Offenders under 26 who have never before served a State prison sentence may be committed to the youth correctional institution to serve indeterminate sentences. The sentences must not exceed 5 years or the maximum time that the law specifies for the offense, whichever is shorter.	Vermont Offenders 10 to 17 years old may be prosecuted as adults for serious felonies including murder, rape, aggravated assault, and robbery.
West Virginia Offenders from 18 to 20 years old may be sentenced for certain crimes committed before their 21st birthday. The sentences to a special facility are from 6 months to 2 years long. At the end of their terms the inmates return to sentencing court with recommendation of probation, release, or remand to an adult prison.	New York Offenders between the ages of 16 and 19 at the time of the offense may have their convictions replaced by youthful offender adjudication. The sentence to an indeterminate term may not exceed 4 years. Records are confidential and proceedings are private. Class A felons and armed robbers do not qualify for this adjudication.	Virginia First offenders, 18 to 21 years old, or juveniles certified as adults may receive indeterminate sentences no longer than 4 years. Before returning to society offenders must pass tests that show that they are capable of being productive citizens. The Parole Board has the authority to release the offender at any time after rehabilitation.
North Carolina Legislation in 1983 permits judges to designate certain offenders Committed Youthful Offender (CYO). If	or record sealing procedures for young adult offenders adjudicated in a criminal court, as opposed to a juvenile court. The offenders	Federal The Federal Youth Corrections Act was repealed, effective October 1984.
Note: State legislatures create youthful offender status through statutes that provide for special sentencing, commitment,	may be above the statutory age limit for juveniles but below a specified upper age limit.

Good-time may be applied differently depending on the offense, sentence length, time served, or criminal history of the prisoner. Earned good-time may be applied, when appropriate, after subtraction of automatic good-time. Those States that credit automatic good-	time according to classes of offenders do not observe the same categories for earned good-time unless otherwise noted. <sup>a</sup> Alaska may alternatively deduct up to 1/4 of the imposed sentence. <sup>b</sup> Florida calls good-time "gain-time." Inmates with mandatory sentences for firearm offenses receive no gain time until completion of the mandatory term.	<sup>c</sup> Georgia's earned good-time was repealed on January 1, 1984. <sup>d</sup> Hawaii applies no good-time for persons under life sentences. <sup>e</sup> Kansas applies, in addition to 10 days of good-time a month, 1 month of good-time for each year in prison.

Table 4.5. Statutory, administrative, and court provisions to reduce prison crowding, January 1, 1985

Type of provision	State	Details of provision	Type of provision	State	Details of provision
Emergency release
	Alaska	The Governor may conditionally commute terms of nonviolent offenders who are within 4 months of release.		Texas	Advances trustees' releases up to 30 days if the prison population exceeds 95% of facility capacity.
	Arizona	May release first offenders up to 180 days before completion of their imposed terms.		Alabama	Applies supervised intensive restitution, a program that returns prisoners to the community without the formality of parole determination (1983).
	Wisconsin	When the Secretary of Health and Human Services recommends, Wisconsin may release prisoners who are within 135 days of their mandatory release date.		Arizona	First offenders, felony classes 4 through 5, may be released to work furlough or parole.
Court orders
	West Virginia	Was under court order, January 1, 1985, to reduce crowding.		Iowa	All except class A felons become eligible for parole if they are within 9 months of release.
	Hawaii	Was under a consent decree.		Montana	If prison exceeds design capacity for 30 days, Montana considers paroling inmates who stand within 120 days of parole eligibility.
Sentence rollbacks
	Connecticut	Advances by 90 days the releases of prisoners with the oldest sentences if a facility is above 109% of designated capacity for 30 days.		New Jersey	May parole to intensive supervision those nonviolent offenders who have served 30 to 60 days.
	Florida	If prison population reaches 98% of capacity, Florida advances releases of eligible inmates up to 30 days (1983).		No. Carolina	The Secretary of Corrections may direct the Parole Commission to reduce crowding by releasing eligible inmates 6 months before their discharge dates (1983).
	Georgia	If the number of prisoners exceeds capacity for 30 days, Georgia advances prisoners' releases 90 days (1982).		Ohio	After the Governor declares a state of emergency, the Parole Board may grant early paroles.
	Iowa	If facilities are over capacity 45 days, Iowa advances selected prisoners' releases 90 days.		So. Carolina	Selected prisoners may be released on furlough to supervision before they parole eligibility.
	Michigan	Advances prisoners' release dates 90 days if the number of prisoners exceeds prison capacity (1980).		Washington	If the Governor declares a state of emergency because of prison crowding, the Sentencing Guidelines Commission and the Clemency Pardon Board convene to effect reductions. The Legislature has also specified early release procedures for selected inmates to reach the target percent of capacity (1983).
	Oklahoma	Advances prisoners' release dates 60 days if the number of prisoners exceeds prison capacity.
	So. Carolina	Advances prisoners' release dates up to 90 days if the population exceeds capacity for 30 days.
	Tennessee	Advances prisoners' release dates up to 6 months (1983).

Explanatory notes

In recent years many jurisdictions have begun to modify their statutes and regulations governing sentences to prison and the means by which convicted offenders are discharged from their prison terms. Generally, such reforms have been designed to reduce the amount of discretion available to sentencing or release authorities, to promote a greater degree of uniformity and certainty in sentencing and release decisions, and to define punishment policies more clearly and explicitly.

This chapter provides data derived from a survey of chief judges, attorneys general, and paroling authorities in each State in January 1985. In general the survey obtained information on these reforms, specifically as they may relate to a prison sentence.

The five tables that summarize the findings of the survey reveal the following:

- Which States use sentencing and parole guidelines--measures that can encourage greater uniformity in sentence and release decision making (table 4.1);
- Some of the special provisions available for differential handling of youthful offenders (table 4.2);
- Detailed information on how sentences are combined with incentive good-time systems to encourage inmate conformity with institutional rules and expectations for behavior (tables 4.3 and 4.4);
- Information on how prison crowding may affect the time that prisoners serve (table 4.5).

Earned and automatic good-time

Good-time is defined as credits toward a sentence, which may be authorized in statute or regulation (automatic good-time) or allocated on the basis of specific activities or achievements, frequently on a discretionary basis (earned good-time). Good-time provides a system of incentives to assure inmate cooperation in managing the institution, to deter rule-violating behavior, and to encourage maximum participation in programs of work and education.

Laws and regulations vary as to whether good-time credits may be withheld at the time of a disciplinary action against future earnings or whether deductions are made from cumulative credits earned at that time. Generally, good-time is awarded on the basis of days served (for example, 10 days credit for 30 days served) or of days spent in a particular activity or program (such as 1 day credit for 5 days worked). Automatic or statutory good-time generally provides for specific rates of award as the duration of confinement increases; earned good-time usually reflects a greater degree of discretion in the size of the credit.

Earned good-time may be awarded for a variety of activities like:

- meritorious or exceptional conduct, for example, fighting forest fires or assisting a correctional officer;
- program participation, for example, attending school or working in a prison industry;
- institutional classification, for example, achieving minimum security or transfer to a camp or reformatory;
- situational factors, for example, donating blood or suffering ill health.

Arizona

Other conditional releases: Include supervised discretionary releases and supervised work furloughs.

Arkansas

Arkansas revised the previously reported December 31, 1984, population of inmates of more than 1 year maximum sentences.

Sentencing information: Reported population includes a small number of inmates with sentences of a year or less.

Parole violators with new sentences: Include parole violators without new sentences.

Conditional release violators with new sentences: Include conditional release violators without new sentences.

Other unconditional releases:

Court-ordered releases.

Other conditional releases:

Persons released under the provisions of Arkansas' Acts 309, 378, and 814 to some type of supervision.

California

California revised the previously reported December 31, 1984, population of inmates with more than 1 year maximum sentences.

New court commitments: May include a small number of transfers from other jurisdictions.

Conditional release violators with new sentences: Include some parole violators with new sentences.

Conditional release violators without new sentences: Include some parole violators without new sentences.

Other admissions: Prisoners returned from supervised, mandatory release or parole and awaiting a revocation hearing.

Unconditional releases, expirations of sentence: Include some court-ordered releases.

Supervised mandatory releases: Include some releases to parole.

Other releases: Residual not accounted for in other release categories. May include prisoners released to court, county jail, hospital, or fire fighting, as well as court-ordered conditional releases.

Unsentenced inmates: Include civil commitments of narcotic addicts and county diagnostic cases.

Total custody population and count of State prisoners in jails:

Include 995 men and 127 women housed in jails and work release facilities to ease prison crowding.

Hispanic prisoners: Include only Mexican Americans. Other Hispanic prisoners categorized as non-Hispanic.

Colorado

Sentencing information: Reported population includes a very small number of inmates with 1 year maximum sentences.

Jurisdiction counts for admissions, releases, and population characteristics: Exclude 245 men held in jails solely to ease prison crowding.

Escapees returned: Number estimated.

Transfers to other jurisdictions:

Number estimated.

Unconditional releases, expirations of sentence: Include some court-ordered releases.

Other releases: Court-ordered releases for which conditions, if any, are unknown.

Custody population counts: Made on January 3, 1986.

Connecticut

New court commitments: May include a small number of prisoners returned from appeal or bond and some probation violators entering with or without new sentences.

Parole violators with new sentences: May include a small number of other conditional release violators returned with new sentences.

Escapees and AWOL prisoners: Counted as a single category.

Unconditional releases, expirations of sentence: Include some probation releases.

Other unconditional releases: Court-ordered releases and pardon discharges.

Other conditional releases:

"Community Residence" releases under supervision similar to that for parolees.

Unspecified causes of death: Unspecified to the Connecticut data system.

Hispanic prisoners: Categorized as prisoners of unknown race.

Delaware

Sentencing information, partially suspended sentences: Some prisoners serve sentences in which the term in prison is partially suspended, to be completed under probation. They were categorized with inmates sentenced to a year or more only when the prison portion of their sentences exceeded 12 months. As a result, the population and movement counts of inmates with maximum sentences of more than 1 year are understated, and the population count of inmates with a year or less maximum sentences is overstated.

New court commitments: Include some conditional release violators other than parolees, with or without new sentences.

Escapees and AWOL prisoners: Counted as a single category.

Other admissions: Prisoners for whom type of admission was unknown at time of data collection.

Unconditional releases, expirations of sentence: Include some releases to probation.

Other unconditional releases: Court-ordered releases.

Other releases: Prisoners for whom type of release was unknown at time of data collection.

District of Columbia

In 1985 the District of Columbia began to include in its prison counts inmates in the jail and the detention center.

Sentencing information, partially suspended sentences: Some prisoners serve sentences in which the term in prison is partially suspended, to be completed under probation. They were categorized with inmates sentenced to a year or more only when the prison portion of their sentences exceeded 12 months. As a result, the population and movement counts of inmates with maximum sentences of more than 1 year are understated, and the population count of inmates with a year or less maximum sentences is overstated.

Sentencing information, short sentences: An undetermined number of inmates housed in neither the District of Columbia jail nor the detention center, and having either no sentence or a maximum sentence of a year or less, was included in the admissions, releases, and population counts of inmates with more than 1 year maximum sentence. As a result, the population and movement counts of inmates with maximum sentences of more than 1 year are overstated, and the population count of inmates with a year or less maximum sentences is understated.

Parole and other conditional release violators: The total number is actual; counts of men within categories of violation are estimates. The female parole violators are counted as having new sentences.

Transfers from other jurisdictions: Transfers from mental hospitals and Federal facilities.

Unconditional releases, expirations of sentence: Include some inmates with partially suspended sentences and released to probation.

Cause of death: No cause is specified.

Other transfers to other jurisdictions: Transfers to mental hospitals and to Federal facilities.

Jurisdictional population totals: Include unsentenced inmates held for the first time in the District jail or detention center.

Federal prisons

Sentencing information, partially suspended sentences: Some prisoners serve sentences in which the term in prison is partially suspended, to be completed under probation. They were categorized with inmates sentenced to a year or more only when the prison portion of their sentences exceeded 12 months. As a result, the population and movement counts of inmates with maximum sentences of more than 1 year are understated, and the population count of inmates with a year or less maximum sentences is overstated.

New court commitments: Include other conditional release violators with new sentences.

Parole violators with and without new sentences: The total number of parole violators is actual; however, the numbers in sentencing categories are estimated.

Other admissions: Include an adjustment for inmates counted as being released even though they remained in jurisdiction of a prison. Include prisoners returning from a release on writs or from authorized temporary absences that became long-term.

Unconditional releases, expirations of sentence: Include some inmates with partially suspended sentences released subject to conditions of probation.

Other releases: Include an adjustment for inmates counted as being admitted although they were already in jurisdiction of a prison. Include prisoners released on writs or authorized temporary absences that became long-term.

Other unconditional releases: Include court-ordered releases and prisoners released by pardons or clemency.

Population total, unsentenced inmates: Includes 1,882 men and 6 women held under the jurisdiction of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Florida

New court commitments: Include other conditional release violators, with or without new sentences.

Admissions, returns from appeal or bond hearings, and other admissions (for men): Include an adjustment for inmates counted as being released even though they remained in jurisdiction of a prison. May include admissions from authorized temporary absences and from appeal or bond.

Admissions, returns from appeal or bond hearings, and other admissions (for women): Include an adjustment for inmates counted as being released even though they remained in jurisdiction of a prison. Also include the residual not accounted for in other admissions categories.

Other unconditional releases: Include pardons, vacated sentences, and unconditional releases ordered by the Probation and Parole Commission.

Releases on appeal or bond and other releases (for men): Include an adjustment for inmates counted as being admitted although they were already in jurisdiction of a prison. May include releases for authorized temporary absences and for appeal or bond.

Releases on appeal or bond and other releases (for women): Include the prisoners for whom type of release was not known at the time of data collection. Also include the difference between the total number of releases and the total of releases classified in other categories.

Georgia

Georgia revised the previously reported December 31, 1984, population of inmates with more than 1 year maximum sentences.

New court commitments: May include some prisoners returning from appeal or bond.

Parole violators with new sentences: Include parole violators without new sentences and other conditional release violators with or without new sentences.

Escapees and AWOL prisoners: Counted as a single category.

Other unconditional releases: Include three inmates whose convictions were overturned and two inmates whose sentences were revoked after they had paid a fine.

Other conditional releases: The Parole Board controls the conditional reprieve releases.

Unspecified causes of death: Cannot specify cause which may include accidents.

Jurisdiction population: Excludes inmates awaiting pick-up from jails.

Black prisoners: Include all persons of a race other than white.

Hawaii

Category estimates: Jurisdiction and custody totals represent actual counts. Admissions, releases, race, and Hispanic origin are estimated from the 1985 fiscal year report.

Prisoners of unknown race:

Include Puerto Ricans, prisoners of other Hispanic origin, and inmates who identified more than one racial background; however, prisoners of part-Hawaiian ancestry are counted as Asians or Pacific Islanders.

Idaho

The Bureau of Justice Statistics estimated all figures reported in 1985. It used the monthly prison management reports of the Idaho Department of Corrections. Thus, the Idaho counts represent estimated rather than actual data. The totals also revise numbers previously reported for 1985.

North Carolina

Sentencing information, partially suspended sentences: Some prisoners serve sentences in which the term in prison is partially suspended, to be completed under probation. The prisoners are categorized with inmates sentenced to a year or more only when the prison portion of their sentences exceed 12 months. Although the maximum sentences of all such prisoners were more than 1 year, nearly all of them are included with those prisoners having sentences of a year or less. During 1985 there were 1,228 uncounted admissions and an almost equal number of uncounted releases of inmates with partially suspended sentences. As a result, the counts of population, admissions, and releases of inmates with more than 1 year maximum sentences are understated, and the population of inmates with a year or less maximum sentences is overstated.

Parole violators with new sentences: Include some parole violators without new sentences and other conditional release violators, with or without new sentences.

Pennsylvania

Parole violators, with or without new sentences: Include 690 men and 6 women returned to State incarceration by the Board of Probation and Parole. They entered on their original sentences and not as technical or convicted parole violators. Their count was divided between violators with new sentences and violators without new sentences according to the ratios of actual convicted or technical parole violators. Hence, 382 men and 3 women were categorized as parole violators with new sentences; 308 men and 3 women were considered to be parole violators without new sentences.

Other unconditional releases: Court-ordered releases.

Rhode Island

Sentencing information: Some prisoners serve sentences in which the term in prison is partially suspended, to be completed under probation. They were categorized with inmates sentenced to a year or more only when the prison portion of their sentences exceeded 12 months. As a result, the population and movement counts of inmates with maximum sentences of more than 1 year are understated, and the population count of inmates with a year or less maximum sentences is overstated.

SUMMARY OF SENTENCED POPULATION MOVEMENT

NATIONAL PRISONER STATISTICS

(Please correct any error in name and address including ZIP code)

FROM THE DIRECTOR
BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

The Bureau of the Census, at the request of the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), collects data on the inmates of prisons in each state, the District of Columbia, and the Federal Bureau of Prisons. This has been done by the Bureau of Prisons, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, or the Bureau of the Census each year since 1926. The collection of these data is authorized by Title 42, United States Code, Section 3732, and is designed to provide annual summary measures of movement into and out of the Nation's correctional systems.

This report form concerns inmates with maximum sentences greater than 1 year who moved into or out of the jurisdiction of your State during the period January 1, 1985 through December 31, 1985. The figures posted in the "1984" columns were transcribed from the NPS-1 report your State submitted last year. Please complete and return the form by February 14, 1986 to expedite timely publication of the data.

In the past, a major problem for national correctional studies has been the inability to collect comparable data from all states because of differing definitions and reporting procedures. We have developed a set of definitions to try to overcome this problem. If you are unable to use our definitions when completing the NPS-1 form, please let us know the specific differences so that we can inform the users of the data.

Although your participation in this endeavor is voluntary, the information you provide is very useful to BJS, the Congress, the states, and others involved in the formulation of national, state, and local justice policy and decision making.

If you need any help, please call collect on (301) 763-2061.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

JOHN G. KEANE

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

In this report, you are asked to report summary populations and movements of offenders under the jurisdiction of your state prison system in 1985, whether they were within the custody of your state's system or were housed elsewhere. Because the NPS-1 is an effort to collect comparable data from all states, we urge that you try to adhere to the concepts and definitions provided on pages 5 and 6 of this form.

However, if after reviewing the concepts and definitions, you are not able to report an item using our guidelines, please inform us using the following procedure.

Enter "NA" (Not Applicable) if by law or regulation your State cannot have the type of inmates described by the item. Enter "0" (zero), if your State can have such inmates but did not have any during 1985. Enter "NR" (Not Reported) in the item, if your State had the type of inmates described by the item but you cannot determine the number of such inmates your State had in 1985. If you cannot determine the number of inmates separately by item, report the combined count in one of the items, enter "NR" in the remaining items and specify in the notes space on pages 2, 4, or 6 all of the items represented by the combined count. Please do not leave any item blank.

INSTRUCTIONS

COVERAGE

In this report, you are asked to report populations and movements of all adults and youthful offenders adjudicated through the adult court and sentenced to a maximum of at least one year and one day and admitted to or released from the jurisdiction of your State prison system, even though they may be housed in another state or in a Federal institution or in a county facility. For example, you should report the admission or release of prisoners sentenced for offenses in your State but housed in another state for safekeeping. You should report the admission or release of state inmates held in local jails as a direct result of overcrowding in state facilities if these inmates are considered to be under your State's jurisdiction while they serve in local jails. You should not report the admission or release of inmates your State was merely housing for other states.

JURISDICTION POPULATION ON JANUARY 1

The jurisdiction population on January 1, 1985 (Item 1) should equal the number of inmates with over 1 year maximum sentence on December 31, 1984 (Item 5a). Revise Item 5a for 1984 if appropriate.

ADMISSIONS

- a. New court commitments — Include all inmates who were admitted with all new sentences, that is, these inmates were not readmitted for any sentences. This category includes probation violators entering prison for the first time on the probated offenses. Do not include parole violators with new sentences as new court commitments.
- b. Parole violators with new sentences — Include all parolees returned with new sentences.
- c. Other conditional release violators with new sentences — Include all conditional releases (other than parole) returned with new sentences, for example, returns from shock probation, from supervised mandatory release, etc.
- d. Parole violators only, no new sentences — Include all parolees returned only for formal revocations of parole which were not accompanied by new sentences. If the parole was not formally revoked, that is, the parolee was held only temporarily pending a hearing, no admission occurred for NPS purposes.
- e. Other conditional release violators only, no new sentences — Include all conditional release violators other than violators returned only for formal revocations of conditional release which were not accompanied by new sentences. If the conditional release was not formally revoked, that is, the conditional release violator was held only temporarily pending a hearing, no admission occurred for NPS purposes.
- f. Transfers from other jurisdictions — Include all inmates transferred to this State's jurisdiction to continue sentences already in force. Do not report the admission if your State does not acquire jurisdiction. Do not report movements from prison to prison within your State.
- g. AWOL returns, with or without new sentences — Include all returns from AWOL. AWOL is defined as failure to return from authorized temporary absences such as work furlough, study release, mercy furlough, or other authorized temporary absence.
- h. Escapee returns, with or without new sentences — Include all returns from escape. Escape is defined as unlawful departure from a State correctional facility or from the custody of State correctional personnel.

ADMISSIONS — Continued

- i. Returns from appeal/bond — Include all inmates reinstated to correctional jurisdiction from long-term jurisdictional absences on appeal or bond. Do not report returns from short-term movements (that is, less than 30 days) to court (that is, where the State retains jurisdiction).
- j. Other admissions — Include all other admissions not covered by the above categories. Please specify the nature of these admissions in the "Notes" section on page 2.

RELEASES

Conditional — A conditional release occurs if the released inmate, upon violating the conditions of his release, can be imprisoned again for any of the sentences for which he was in prison.

- d. Probations — Include all inmates who have been placed under probation supervision and conditionally released. Include all shock probation releases.
- e. Supervised mandatory releases — Include all inmates who must, by law, be conditionally released. This type of release may also be called mandatory conditional release.
- f. Paroles — Include all inmates conditionally released to parole. Enter only releases officially entitled "parole."

FROM THE DIRECTOR
BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

On behalf of the Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS), Department of Justice, the Bureau of the Census is conducting the National Parole Data Survey. The survey will obtain current information on the parole population in calendar year 1985 and the population movement.

State, local, and Federal officials will use the data to assess the changing needs of parole systems and to keep informed of their status. BJS will publish the data in a bulletin entitled Probation and Parole 1985 scheduled for release in fall 1986.

So that we can complete data collection and publish the survey results as soon as possible, please complete this questionnaire within the next 3 weeks and return it in the enclosed envelope. If we can help in completing the questionnaire, please call Stephanie Brown at (301) 763-7825.

The Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Street Act of 1968, as amended (42 U.S.C. 3732), authorizes this report. Although you are not required legally to respond, we need your participation to make the results of this survey comprehensive, accurate, and timely.

We will therefore appreciate your cooperation in the survey.

Sincerely,

Note: No death penalty statute, in whole or in part, was struck down in 1985. Such court rulings could have resulted in removing from death row affected groups of prisoners.

The following States with death penalty statutes reported no prisoners leaving death row in 1985: Connecticut, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Vermont, South Dakota, Colorado, Montana, New Mexico, Oregon, Washington, and Wyoming.

<sup>a</sup>Commutation changed sentences from execution to life in prison or terms of years.

<sup>b</sup>Further legal proceedings may have followed the vacating of sentences and of convictions and may have resulted in new sentences of death.

<sup>c</sup>Oklahoma and Arizona each vacated the conviction of an American Indian prisoner under sentence of death.

<sup>d</sup>One inmate under sentence of death in Ohio committed suicide; one each in Missouri and Tennessee was murdered by another inmate, and one in Louisiana died of natural causes.

The 1986 Directory of Automated Criminal Justice Information Systems

If your company's market researchers want to know which Federal, State, and local criminal justice agencies are fully automated and what computer equipment is currently used, they need a copy of the Bureau of Justice Statistics' 1986 Directory of Automated Criminal Justice Information Systems. This one-of-a-kind index lists more than 1,000 computerized information systems being used by police, courts, corrections, and other criminal justice agencies across the United States.

Organized alphabetically by State, city, or county, the Directory is a reference guide to information systems that are operational or are being developed. Each entry lists the type of information system in place—whether it be police computer-aided dispatch or Prosecution Management Support System (PMSS). In addition, the Directory supplies information about the status of a system's applications and its statistical and communications capabilities, names hardware and software, and furnishes key contact names, addresses, and telephone numbers of criminal justice agency administrators and data processing personnel with purchasing authority.

Never before have so many aspects of criminal justice database information systems been systematically compiled and reported. Five indexes help locate systems by jurisdiction, system name, system function, statistical topic, and central processing unit.

The Directory, prepared by SEARCH Group, Inc., for the U.S. Bureau of Justice Statistics, is a major step in the Bureau's program to provide a current reference for data processing and criminal justice planners who are developing new systems or who are enhancing existing ones.

The 1986 Directory of Automated Criminal Justice Information Systems costs only $20.
